Watch all the plenaries from CYBERUK 2024 live, and for free

Key talks from the UK government's flagship cyber security event will be livestreamed from Birmingham's ICC.

Darragh M

There's less than one month to go before Birmingham's ICC hosts CYBERUK 2024, the UK government's flagship cyber security event on the 14th and 15th of May.

The in-person event is now sold out, but you can still catch all the plenary sessions – and lots more fantastic content – which will be streamed live, for free, on the CYBERUK 2024 YouTube channel.

The theme of this year's conference is 'Future Tech, Future Threat, Future Ready', and a global panel of cyber security experts will discuss the key issues facing the industry including AI, quantum computing, building a cyber workforce and threats to critical national infrastructure.

For a preview of what you can expect at this year's conference, please visit the NCSC's 'Journey to CYBERUK 2024' playlist.

Whether you're attending in person or online, we hope you enjoy CYBERUK 2024, and help us to shape a safer, more resilient digital future.

See you in Brum!

Darragh M
Deputy Director Communications

WRITTEN BY

Darragh M
Deputy Director
Communications

PUBLISHED

17 April 2024

WRITTEN FOR

Cyber security professionals

PART OF BLOG

Events and initiatives